Y. W. Steps In To Save Girl From Man's Duplicity

Back to her home in the Antipodes a recent boat out of Honolulu is taking a comely maiden, who could tell her own brand new version of one of the world's oldest stories, a story of man's duplicity and woman's credulity, that was saved from its worst ending by the timely and efficient action of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Last winter it was summer for her there on the other side of the world—this young girl met a handsome stranger, who said his home was in Honolulu. The meeting was brief, lasting only while a steamer could take on luggage and passengers, but it was long enough for an exchange of addresses and photographs to be made. A correspondence followed, growing more ardent with every mail, as the heap of letters which the girl held in her possession while she was in Honolulu showed. The young girl, a speedy marriage, promising the girl a comfortable and happy home with him in Hawaii, about two months ago she cabled her willingness, named the steamer on which she would come, and set sail for Honolulu.

On the same boat was a Y. W. C. A. secretary, who, observing the girl, became convinced of her lack of knowledge of the world and its ways, engaged her in conversation and was soon told the tender secret. From that hour the Y. W. C. A. secretary became the self-appointed guardian of the girl, and on reaching Honolulu, there being no eager lover on the wharf to welcome his fiancée, took her to the Homestead on King street, where she was put under the personal care of the superintendent.

An investigation of the affair and a search for the delinquent bridegroom was at once begun by the home secretary, who traced the man through various places where he had been employed, and at last discovered him living on one of the other islands—with his wife.

The home secretary then turned the matter over to the legal adviser of the Y. W. C. A., who demanded an explanation and was informed by the man that his loving-making to the young girl was only a pastime. He could make no explanation of his letters urging the young girl to come to Honolulu and marry him when he had a living wife who had no intention of giving him up to another woman. The man is well into the thirties, the girl only 19.

An effort was made by the attorney to have the man pay the girl's passage to her home, but this he declined to do, claiming that he had no funds. Having ascertained that this statement was more than likely true, the Y. W. C. A., through its officers, applied to the British consul and a ticket to her home was secured for the girl.

GEN. MACOMB, RETIRED, IS AGAIN IN SERVICE

Army orders received through the mail today announce that Brigadier General Montgomery M. Macomb, retired, has been called into active service and assigned as chief of staff of the western department in San Francisco. General Macomb is well known in Hawaii, having been department commander here. He was father of the Macomb defense plans for these islands.

SAY 10 MILLION MAY BE VALUE MATSON ESTATE

Local Business Men Declare Ventures Have Advanced in Value Since Last Estimates

Well informed Honolulu business men declare that the estate left by Capt. William Matson is probably worth nearer $10,000,000 than $2,000,000 as is estimated to be in the will of the captain filed yesterday in San Francisco.

They say that the estimate in the will was undoubtedly made very low, and made sometime ago, since which many of the business ventures he was interested in have advanced greatly in value.

An example of stocks he held which have become very valuable is that of the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Co., now worth between $4 and $5 a share. He was a heavy holder of the stock as he was one of the promoters of the company.

His holdings in the Matson Navigation Co. have also made the dead man in value since the beginning of the war. Other stocks owned by him have made like advances.

According to the will of the late captain he leaves $1,000,000 to his wife and $166,000 to each of his six children. He had five children by his first wife, two sons and three daughters, and a sixth daughter, Mrs. Lurline Roth, by his widow. One of his sons is Walter Matson, who is employed by T. J. Hendry & Co., ship chandlery firm in San Francisco.

No information has been received by the local Matson office as to whom will be selected to act as manager of the company, although an Associated Press report from San Francisco states that E. D. Tenney of Honolulu is looked upon as his logical successor. Mr. Tenney's associates here, however, doubt whether he would accept the position, as he has been heard to express a preference to gradually retire from active participation in business, as his private fortune is large.
